Here are a few more pictures in the daylight. These are just the early risers, they came from our front yard where it's sunnier. There is no indication that any have surfaced from behind the house, where it's heavily wooded and shaded. Given how many have shown up so far, I expect to be inundated. Hopefully when they take to the air, I can get some video, and when they start making noise, I'll get audio.

Remember these little guys are coming up on their 17th birthday...
