Hello from Ormond Beach Florida.

Since I was in Georgia at the end of last week, I took the weekend off (I can't remember the last time I've had a whole weekend to myself) and drove South to visit with family.

Unfortunately I've been dragging bad weather around with me on this tour. Florida this past weekend was extremely windy, wet, and unseasonably cold.

I had tried to take a leisurely stroll down the beach on Saturday morning, but the developing ear-ache from the wind and cold convinced me I ought to take an alternate approach. Ormond Beach and Daytona Beach, just to the South, are areas where you can drive on the beach, so contrary to my car rental agreement, I decided to just drive down the beach to get my exercise.

And just in case you missed it, also attached is this morning's Sunrise.

I'm off to yet another destination this afternoon.

Cheers,
G.
