Hello from Ocean City Maryland.

Denise & I are on our annual retreat at the ocean again and I was playing with my camera this morning, and captured today's Sunrise as an animation.

It's my first attempt at creating a time-lapse animation with my camera. The video is a combination of 72 stills combined into a Quick-Time movie. The elapsed time is 10 minutes, with a frame rate of 10 frames/second. Not quite Hollywood, but it'll do, pig. It'll do. (a quote from the movie "Babe" - not a reference to the reader;-)

Now I'm going back out on to the deck to enjoy the weather, and to not think about work. So far we've been highly successful at both.

Cheers,
D&G.

You'll need the free Apple Quick-Time Player to view the movie. If you don't have QuickTime, the free player can be found here:
