Happy New Year.

I'm in the Pacific Northwest again for personal reasons, not work. Funny, but when I travel to a place that I frequently visit for work reasons, and it's not for work, I kind of feel like I'm playing hooky.

But I'm staying at the hotel where they know my name. It is snowing here and it wasn't expected. In fact, this region is seeing snowfall accumulations that they haven't experienced in decades.

I just arrived a couple of hours ago, and I'll be gone in a day. But I couldn't pass up forwarding this picture. I've sent other pictures of Oyster Bay, but never one with snow. And it's actually snowing in the picture. Look closely and you can see streaks from the flakes. It's an 8 second exposure.

Cheers,
G.
