Hello.

Time-Lapse video of the snow event we just had here in the mid-Atlantic. It starts Friday Morning (5 Feb) and ends Sunday Evening. I measured 25 inches in our front yard.

1 Frame every 30 seconds, played back at 30 frames per second.

The flashing on the first night comes from the holiday lights on the house. I figured as long as they were still working, it'd add color to the white landscape (the same lights in the Holiday Postcard). The neighbors seemd to like it.

The snow removal teams seem to be waiting to do the neighborhoods until last, just to keep us off the roads. I had to cancel a trip Monday Morning because I can't get to the airport. Shucks.

G.
